

Colin J. Browne Speaker Profile

Biography

Colin is the founder of Happy Sandpit, which helps organisations to interpret, define and embed culture and leadership philosophies and practices in order to drive employee engagement.

He is the author of How to build a Happy Sandpit, the originator of the Three Day Culture Field Trip, and inventor of the Iceberg! Core Values employee engagement game.

He has lectured on the topics of culture, engagement and leadership at local and international business schools including Wits Business School, GIBS and the University of St. Gallen (Switzerland). He has delivered keynotes and conducted workshops on a wide range of topics related to employee engagement, organisational culture and healthy workplaces.

He is married with three daughters and lives in Johannesburg, South Africa.

Past Clients

Testimonials

“ Our team found great value in the presentation delivered by Colin Browne, and found it both educational and entertaining. ”

Erik Venter, CEO, Comair

“ Colin has done remarkable and original work in understanding the structures of organisational culture among South African organisations. ”

James Herbst, CEO, Huge Telecom

“ We were thrilled with Colin’s address to our team about culture ... a great presentation that left the team motivated, excited and informed. ”

Natasha Sideris, founder, tashas

BOOK COLIN TODAY

Colin is represented exclusively by Hesketh Media.
To enquire or make a booking, please contact:

duncan@hesketh-media.com